

Describe a shop recently opened in your hometown.

1. What it sells
2. Where it is
3. What kinds of people like to shop there
4. and explain how you feel about this shop

Last year, during the summer, my hometown Hebei had its first apple store, which was located in the city center. The Apple store is on the ground floor of Wanda shopping mall. Since my hometown is a small place where used to be famous for fishing and agriculture, many people in my hometown still have no sense to the smart phones. Apple store's existence has become a unique landmark, which attracts hundreds of locals to visit it everyday.

question 1 and 2

Of course Apple store sells various kinds of its own brand electronic devices, especially focusing on iPhones, iPads, Macbook laptops, and Apple watches. On the other hand, it provides different fields of service. For example, Genius Bar help customers deal with any possible hardware issues or Workshops help customers learn about Apple devices better in order to maximize the usage of products. In addition, on one side of the store, we can purchase some accessories. I found people ranged from all ages packed in here, especially young people.

question 3

Personally, I was excited because I am a huge fan of Apple company. The devices it brought to our world and the technology it showed to our society have massive impacts on people's life, not only met our needs but also improved our life quality. For example, my mother bought an iPad and started to learn how to use apps on it. Sometimes she asked me about how to use those apps. I feel happy about my mother's curiosity. At least it shows this apple shop has brought some new fresh to the boring countryside life.
